ABOUT US

In the early 1980s, a group of Lawndale residents gathered together and identified a pressing need for a health center for the community. As a result, Lawndale Christian Health Center (LCHC) was founded as a ministry of Lawndale Community Church. LCHC, a federally qualified community health center, serves under-resourced communities on Chicago’s west side through primary medical care, dental and optometry, behavioral health, additional health support services, and fitness.
LETTER FROM CEO AND BOARD OF DIRECTORS

DEAR FRIENDS OF LAWNDALE CHRISTIAN HEALTH CENTER,

Lawndale Christian Health Center seeks to follow Jesus. The words of Jesus as recorded in Luke 4:18-19 are moving. They are filled with hope. We hear them and we want to follow. Jesus proclaims, “The Spirit of the Lord is on me, because he has anointed me to proclaim good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim freedom for the prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, to set the oppressed free, to proclaim the year of the Lord’s favor.” As followers, as workers, we seek to extend Jesus’ mission, particularly in places where hope is lacking. Jesus was an activist who provided hope. Hope empowers. Empowerment brings health.

In the 2012 fiscal year, we have invested our efforts at nurturing hope, empowerment, and health. We opened our new Health and Fitness Center building, where over 3,000 people from our community are making use of an affordable, high-quality fitness center over 16,000 times a month. Our new dental clinic is improving oral health in our community, one child at a time. And our medical providers continue to live out our mission each day, addressing the physical, spiritual, and emotional health of our patients and their families.

As followers of Jesus we try to measure ourselves against the standards we see in Luke 4:18-19. Do we proclaim the good news, not just in word, but though our deeds? If poverty imprisons, do we empower? If our neighbors have lost sight of life’s possibilities, have we helped them to regain their sight? When our neighbors look around, are they recognizing that this is the year of the Lord’s favor? We have much yet to do, but Jesus gives us a message of hope. That is the message we seek to deliver.

Sincerely,

Rev. Paco Amador

WORLDS APART, SAME MISSION
Jerry Umanos, MD

Dr. Jerry Umanos practices medicine in both inner-city Chicago and war-torn Afghanistan. Each has its own unique circumstances and challenges. But he has learned that despite these differences, the basic principles of practicing effective medicine are still the same.

His experiences at Lawndale Christian Health Center laid a strong foundation for his work on the other side of the world. Dr. Umanos worked as a pediatrician at LCHC for over 16 years. In 2005, he and his wife, Jan, felt called to move to Afghanistan.

Today, Dr. Umanos works in Kabul at a community health center and a children’s hospital, which are the only two training programs for Afghan doctors in the country. In Afghanistan, patients will often take a 3-hour bus ride to be seen by a doctor. Then they will turn around and take the same bus back home later that day, making follow-up with them incredibly difficult.

During his years practicing in Lawndale, Dr. Umanos faced similar challenges of following up with patients. At LCHC, he learned the importance of understanding each patient’s context to build a trusting relationship. He believes that he must provide the best care possible at each visit, because there is a chance that he may not see the patient again.

Dr. Umanos is not alone in living out his passion to provide services and share medical knowledge overseas. Over 30 LCHC staff has travelled to Kabul to assist in teaching physician residents, midwives, and community health workers.
Maria has experienced many difficult pregnancies throughout the years. Dr. Kara Greeley, a Family Medicine physician and Clinical Director at LCHC’s Farragut location, has provided her prenatal care for many of them. But for Dr. Greeley, delivering medical services is not enough; she wants to see complete wellness in her patients: physically, emotionally, and spiritually.

Maria has seen her share of challenges in life. Her husband has been in jail, leaving her alone to raise all of her children. Dr. Greeley had frequently asked Maria if she had a church as a support system, but she would always say no – she did not want to talk about spiritual things.

Other LCHC staff, including her children’s pediatrician and a lab tech, would also speak to Maria about her spiritual life over the years. Slowly, she began to open up and listen to what they had to say.

This past year, Maria came to Dr. Greeley’s office for an appointment. This time, she expressed an interest in talking about her spiritual life. Dr. Greeley prayed with her, and Maria decided to come to church.

Now Maria’s daughter, Yoselyn, has a new baby. In the delivery room, Maria was reading verses about God’s love and protection over her daughter. It was from a pamphlet given to her by Dr. Greeley.

At LCHC, staff and providers integrate faith with their work and service. While patients initially come to the health center because of their immediate health care needs, many have also come to expect a deeper level of care and compassion from LCHC’s staff, fueled by the love of Jesus.
TAKING CONTROL OF HIS HEALTH

Johnathan McCamey

Johnathan McCamey always knew he wanted to lose weight, but it felt more like a distant goal than a present reality. “I’ve always been heavier and would think that someday I would lose the weight,” said Mr. McCamey.

When he stepped on the scale at Lawndale Christian Fitness Center and saw he was the heaviest he’s ever been, he received the proverbial wake-up call. Recognizing that he now had the resources and encouragement to make it happen, he set out to lose weight and improve his health.

At first the weight came off slowly. But through perseverance and hard work, McCamey began to lose weight quickly, and working out became enjoyable, instead of a burdensome task.

But then McCamey was shot in the arm as a bystander on the sidewalk in his neighborhood. His doctor told him he should stop exercising for a while so he could heal. He recovered sooner than expected, presumably due to his improved health. This inspired McCamey to keep exercising with more determination than before. He has now lost over 70 pounds since the beginning of the year.

Johnathan loves the treadmill, and also enjoys the bike. “I’m addicted,” he said. “Now I love the gym and look forward coming in. The community here is great too. I love being able to encourage people around me when they ask for tips or pieces of encouragement to lose weight. I remember being where they were and I love motivating them to keep going!”

Now McCamey’s mother, sister, and close friends are all members at LCFC.

The new LCFC facility opened its doors in April of 2012, bringing high-quality fitness resources to even more members of our community.

Dr. Sam Borgmeyer first joined LCHC in October 2011. As a doctor of dental surgery, he sees both adult and pediatric patients at our Ogden campus locations.

Dr. Borgmeyer always knew that he wanted to make a positive difference in people’s lives. Although his dad was a dentist, he wasn’t always sure he would follow in his footsteps. But his interest in dentistry was encouraged by watching his dad interact with his patients, building genuine relationships with them. Even today, one of Dr. Borgmeyer’s favorite aspects of dentistry is the personal interaction he has with his patients, inspiring healthy behaviors and even building friendships.

While he was in dental school, Dr. Borgmeyer learned about the importance of changing perspectives on dental care and helping people realize that oral health is just as important as other health needs.

Having recently relocated to Chicago, Dr. Borgmeyer was drawn to LCHC as soon as he learned about its whole-person approach to healthcare. “All rotating dentists that come through LCHC, regardless of faith, acknowledge that this is a different place to work - in a positive way,” said Dr. Borgmeyer.

Overall, staff, providers and patients are all here for the same reason. Together, we’re all here to pursue the same mission and purpose. It’s all about Jesus. As Dr. Borgmeyer says, “We’re not just here to fix teeth. We’re here to change lives.”
I get the sense that if we do not initialize contact with [patients discharged from the hospital], some of them will not take the time to call and set up a follow-up appointment at all. The fact that we do is the reason that they come in.

PART OF THE SOLUTION
Innovation Improves Care for Lawndale Patients

A commitment to addressing health disparities in our community has always been core to Lawndale Christian Health Center’s mission. Because of this, LCHC has become a leader in an unprecedented collaborative of hospitals and community health centers, whose objective is to improve access, quality, and coordination of care for low-income patients in Chicago.

Called the Medical Home Network, the collaborative connects hospitals and health centers on the southwest side of Chicago with an innovative data sharing platform. Primary care providers like LCHC are now notified when a patient is discharged from the hospital – something previously not possible — which allows staff to call these patients and proactively schedule a follow-up visit. By providing this service, the patient receives higher quality care, and the entire health care system benefits from a reduction in unnecessary emergency room visits and readmissions.
HOME SWEET MEDICAL HOME
Pursuing a Relational Approach to Care

Having grown out of a community church, Lawndale Christian Health Center is motivated by a desire to “love our neighbor” – our patients. This compels our providers and staff to develop creative solutions to effectively address the often complex healthcare needs of our patients.

The Patient-Centered Medical Home model, recently adopted by LCHC, provides a roadmap for providers and staff to continuously improve access and quality of team-based care that is centered on the patient’s needs.

Moving beyond individual clinical encounters, the PCMH model focuses on improving overall health, providing more coordinated care across the health care system, and ensuring that patients receive appropriate care when they need it. The goal is for patients to see LCHC as their medical “home” — where they are welcomed, valued, and empowered to live healthy lives.

MY HEALTH

In 2012, LCHC launched its MyHealth patient portal, an online tool that allows patients to schedule appointments, view test results and medical history, and communicate with their provider, all with the click of a button. Available through the Lawndale.org website, this new capability makes it easier than ever for patients to take control of their health.
CATCHING THE VISION

On December 1, 2011, 212 of LCHC’s partners, sponsors, friends, and donors gathered at 3750 West Ogden to celebrate and experience the vision of the new Health and Fitness Center. Guests were greeted with a steaming cup of hot apple cider from the Green Tomato Café staff, and were led on a tour of each wing of the building to learn more about its services and offerings.

Tour guides described the amenities of the new Lawndale Christian Fitness Center, explained the building’s eco-friendly geothermal heating and cooling system, led visitors through the expanded Pediatric Dental clinic, and shared the team-driven design of the women’s health and pediatric health clinics.

The evening concluded with a reception in the fourth-floor Skyline Conference Room, where guests heard from leaders and friends of LCHC, including Bruce Miller, CEO of LCHC; Rob Ferrino, President of Madison Construction; and Alan Channing, CEO of Sinai Health System.

OPENING DOORS TO GOOD HEALTH

Joined by local leaders including Mayor Rahm Emanuel, Lawndale Christian Health Center celebrated the opening of the new Health and Fitness Center on May 15, 2012. The state-of-the-art facility was built with a vision of providing a safe and inviting public space for fitness, nutrition and medical care in the heart of the North Lawndale community.

The Health and Fitness Center provides an environment where community residents can affordably engage themselves to solve chronic health issues.

“This Center will create jobs and economic opportunity right in the Lawndale community and empower residents to take control of their health and wellness,” said Mayor Emanuel. “Facilities like this one promote a high quality of life for Chicagoans right in their own neighborhoods and increase the overall economic and social vitality of our communities.”

With the new Health and Fitness Center, LCHC has created a new standard for improving the health of an urban low-income community. This model combines access to great clinical care with the key prevention tools of exercise, fitness, and wellness in an environment where community residents can affordably engage themselves to solve chronic health issues like obesity and diabetes.

1 Statement of Revenues and Expenses differs from Form 990, due to exclusion of capital revenue.
2 Due to the leveraged lending requirements to participate in a New Market Tax Credits program, LCHC brought $16MM in Notes Receivables and $24MM in Long Term debt; this yielded $6MM to be used solely for capital expenditures and transactional fees.
3 Statement differs from FY11 report. The FY11 report excluded depreciation expense.
